Notes

1. Values in tables are given as a guide and not for final calculation.
2. The small percentage of salts of potash and timber is explained by the shortage of rolling stock and water transportation.
3. Twenty-two thousand tons of fluorspar were to have been sent according to plan, but deliveries have now been held up because the Poles insist that they want it in pieces. Only powder fluorspar is available for delivery and the Poles refuse to accept this.
4. Deficits in other reparations material will be made good in the fourth quarter of 1946.
5. the copper sulphate, sent on 24 September 1946, had not crossed the frontier by 6 October. It has, therefore, been marked "Conditionally" in the "Received Column."
6. The Russians consider the problem of providing sufficient transportation for mass deliveries of goods such as salts of potash and timber to Poland yet unsolved.
